NAIROBI

The Press Club of East Africa, Kenya branch held its inaugural dinner recently and from reports reaching the Bulletin, the whole thing was a gigantic success. OPC President Louis Lochner had sent a cable and letter to the new club, both of which were read by the toastmaster, who managed to stay articulate longer than most. One hundred and sixty members and guests attended, among them Kenya's governor, Sir Evelyn Baring; Commander-in-Chief, East Africa, Lt. Gen. G.W. Lathbury; and Kenya's police chief, Richard C. Catling. The U.S. was represented by Mr. and Mrs. John A. Noon, USIS officer in Nairobi, and by the voice of Ed Hughes of Time and Life, who has passed through a few days earlier and had been press-ganged into putting a few cheery words on tape for broadcast at the dinner. The new Club's secretary, Harold G. Laycock, sender of this report on the Kenya Press Club, extends a warm welcome to all OPCers who find themselves in Nairobi.

STEVENS LEAVES ROME FOR LOOK AT MOSCOW POST

Ed Stevens, formerly Christian Science Monitor Mediterranean Bureau chief has been named by Look to head its newly established Moscow bureau.

The Pulitzer-prize-winning correspondent was a Monitor war correspondent in the Soviet Union in 1943 and 1944, and later Stevens was the newspaper's correspondent in Moscow for three years. His wife is Russian-born and Stevens himself speaks fluent Russian.

He will go to the Soviet Union shortly after the first of the year.

Stevens, whose Pulitzer award was for international reporting in 1950, is the author of a new book, published last month by Coward-McCann, titled "North African Powder Keg." Two previous books dealt with Russia — "Russia Is No Riddle" and "This Is Russia Uncensored."

OPC Christmas festivities will be kicked off on Monday, Dec. 19, with a children's party at the Club head-quarters. On Tuesday, members and their guests will ring in the Yule season at a Norwegian dinner with a Christmas theme.

The Monday party, for children of OPC members, will run from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. and will feature entertainment of an international flavor, including a Mexican pinata and the appearance from the Okefenokee Swamp of Walt Kelly, creator of the comic strip 'Pogo,' who will draw his characters for the children and their parents. A magician will perform and refreshments will be sewed. There is no charge for either children or adults.

At the Norwegian dinner on Tuesday, the piece de resistance will be reindeer steak, with Norwegian enterntainment and door prizes.

Reservations are necessary for the dinner, and are requested for the children's party.

COURT UPHOLDS TIMES FIRING OF BARNET

The firing of Melvin Barnet, a New York Times copy editor, for refusing to testify before a Senate committee was justified, a New York State Supreme Court justice ruled this week.

Justice Felix C. Benvenga's decision, handed down Monday, upheld the position of the New York Times management as to the meaning of its collective-bargaining agreement with the New York local of the American Newspaper Guild. Justice Benvenga's ruling said that the dismissal was not subject to arbitration within the terms of the Times Guild contract, as the Guild had maintained.

M. Michael Potoker, secretarytreasurer of the New York Guild, said the decision would be appealed.

Barnet was discharged on July 13 this year after he declined to answer questions on his membership in the Communist Party prior to February, 1942. His refusal was on grounds of possible self-incrimination, and Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of the Times, subsequently dismissed him, stating that his refusal to testify had "caused the Times to lose confidence in you as a member of its news staff."

The Guild argued that the firing should go to arbitration under the terms house on 39th St. his headquarters. He leaves again for Paris in time to cover the elections on January 2.

Heymann was entertained at lunch on Tuesday by the Committee for Liaison with Overseas Members, at which time he expressed the good and bad side to being an OPC member overseas. of its contract with the Times. It argued that management's reasons as stated in the Sulzberger letter were not "good and sufficient," and that Barnet was entitled reinstatement with back pay.

Justice Benvenga's decision was based primarily on the fact that members of the Times Guild unit had voted 337 to 235 against arbitration in a Guild-conducted referendum. The referendum had been preceded by a report by the Times unit's grievance committee, which had voted eleven to four against taking the case to arbitration.

PEOPLE & PLACES...

Helen Zotos collaborated with Cardinal Mindszenty's nephew, Laszlo Szamosfalvi, in a three-installment series in the American Weekly that lifted the Iron Curtain of secrecy surrounding the fate of Hungary's primate as a communist captive.

OPCer Morris Ernst will be the young man looking into the future at the Hospitality Committee's Dec. 27 discussion of the twentieth century, while Dr. Arthur J. Brown will appraise the past 55 years.

Ernst, the author of the recently published "Utopia 1976," is 68 years old. Brown is 99 and a prominent theows logian, elector of the Hall of Fame, and a director of Andrew Carnegie's Church on, Peace Union Endowment.

Brown will view the century from his near-centanarian vantage point, taking a long, hard look of what we have ing done and what we have left undone. in Ernst, who is an attorney and civil libertarian in addition to being an author, will attempt to look into the future to tell Club members and guests what to expect in the years ahead.

The two men will be guests of honor at the Open House on Tuesday, Dec. 27, with cocktails starting at 6 p.m.

The Hospitality Committee further announces that the door fee has been eliminated at the Tuesday open houses.

Overseas Ticker (Continued from p. 1) like Russia's H-bomb of same date." She further notes that Hank Lieberman of the Times flew in to Taipei from Hong Kong and Saigon on Dec. 7 to interview Nationalist China's Foreign Minister George Yeh on the Formosa government's position on the U.N. package deal.

CAIRO

OPC Vice President Hal Lehrman, who has been viewing the Pyramids and other things here, left the other day for further inspection of the Arab States. He expects to be back in New York around the end of January.

TREGASKIS, WIFE COME HOME TO "NEW" HOUSE

Dick Tregaskis, accompanied by his wife Walton, who uses a camera to illustrate his pieces, writes that he has just returned to the U.S. from a two-and-onehalf month trip to Germany and England, on assignment for Sports Illustrated and Nation's Business.

The trip, he says, was "our third of the year, with two previous ones to Japan, and to Hong Kong, the Philippines, and Formosa. We have a new house we just bought a year ago, but we have managed to spend ten months since we got it away on assignments. In Berlin, we talked to Gary Stindt of NBC and to Joe Singer of INS, but despite their assistance, we were unable to obtain visas to Moscow. In East Berlin, we were tailed by Red cops. Saw Carl and Sheeley Mydans and Don Burke of Life in London."

Ernie Hill, Chicago Daily News London correspondent, is covering North Africa for a month, starting with the return of the Sultan to Morocco. Bill Stoneham of the Paris office is the British capital while Hill is away. Rabat, Fez and Tangier are the temporary scenes of Ernie's operations.

The 1955 award for the "best government public relations" went to Mrs. Lee K. Jaffe, director of p.r. for the Port of New York Authority, at a joint meeting of the Government Public Relations Association and the American Municipal Association in Miami recently. In 1950 and 1951 Mrs. Jaffe received the American Public Relations Association Association top award in the field of government public relations.

John Day, Howard Kany and Jack Fern of CBS News conducted a breakfast discussion session in Denver at the annual convention of the Radio-Television News Directors Association. Ted Koop, CBS Washington, and Sam Zelman, CBS Los Angeles, also attended.

The second issue of the new weekly, National Review, features an article by Eugene Lyons, former OPC president. It is entitled, "Lest We Remember!"

Photographer's Notebook: Life photographer FRITZ GORO checks an Australian aborigine's spear while covering tribal rite for the Life series on "The Epic of Man." For this story, which appeared in Life last week, Goro spent two months on the Milingimbi and Yirrkala Islands off the coast of Australia's Northern Territory. One friend he made in this time had been accused of killing a rival clansman. Through the alleged (watch those libel laws) killer's influence, Goro was allowed to photograph the feud-settling ritual with the enemy clan, as well as the tribe's circumcision ceremony. When the pictures of the aborigines hit the stands this week, Goro was off again, this time to accompany Admiral Byrd and his U.S. Navy expedition to the Antarctic.
